Re: our archival materials.

Recently I was in the lobby of Horn. Gen. Hosp. and was pleased to see the lovely archival materials from their school of nursing in a display case.

I'd like to see ours in the 1st. floor of the hospital. I doubt if the lobby could be appropriate. I've been looking around from where I am at the information. I am wondering if the wall along the Bishop Dowling wing as you leave the St Mary Grace lobby? Just a thought!

Perhaps Northshore lobby has more space but the biggest traffic is in our Charleston. Mary Grace entrance.

Many thanks for all the efforts of the executive to have such a great banquet again this year and all the many hours of work continually during the whole year.

Sister Joan O’Sullivan and Marietta Pupo Honoured

Two members of the St. Joseph’s Hospital family are walking proud after being named Women of the Year by the Hamilton Status of Women Sub-Committee. In front of 900 people at the 14th Annual Awards at the Hamilton Convention Centre, Sister Joan O’Sullivan and Marietta Pupo, Reg.N., were honoured for their achievements.

Sister Joan, Assistant General Superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Hamilton, was named Woman of the Year in the Workplace category. Sr. Joan was presented with her award for her many accomplishments. Most notable is her ten-year term as Executive Director of St. Joseph’s Hospital, her work in establishing the Good Shepherd Centre for Women and the Hamilton Women’s Detox Centre, and her efforts in establishing the twinning of St. Joe’s with the small Caribbean island of Dominica.

Named as Woman of the Year in Health, Sport and Fitness was Marietta Pupo. Honoured for her contributions to health care in the Hamilton community, specifically in the areas of maternity care, palliative care and her work with head and neck cancer patients, Marietta currently works as Clinical Nurse Specialist on 5 and 6 Surgery and effective at the end of April will be Clinical Nurse Specialist/Nursing Co-ordinator of the Palliative Care Consultation Team. A graduate of the St. Joseph’s Hospital School of Nursing and a nurse at St. Joe’s for more than 25 years, Marietta teaches at McMaster University. Something that speaks volumes about the kind of person Marietta Pupo has always been is the fact that she maintains strong links with many past and current patients.

1990 Woman of the Year

Congratulations to Sister Joan O'Sullivan (Celestine '43).

In November 1998, Sister was presented with the prestigious Hamilton Gallery of Distinction Award which recognizes and honours prominent citizens who have, by their accomplishments, brought credit to the Hamilton Community.

Sister Joan was honoured locally as Irish Canadian Citizen of the year in 1987, and Woman of the Year in Health Care in 1990.

Today, she is Assistant General Superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph's, Hamilton, and a member of the Board of Directors of the System.

Our President, Dorothy Marshall and Membership Secretary, Diane Poehlman represented our Alumnae at the Dinner, held at the Hamilton Convention Centre, and were very proud as Sister praised St. Joseph's Hospital's leadership accomplishments in her acceptance speech.

Sister Joan to retire from St. Joe's hospital

SISTER JOAN O'Sullivan, executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton, will retire Dec. 31.

Sister Joan said yesterday she has not made up her mind what she plans to do next.

"But I'm not putting my feet up," she said. Her main concern now is to complete her task at the hospital and then consider other possibilities, she said.

Surprised

The 66-year-old director said her announcement, made after much soul searching and thought, surprised many of her colleagues at the hospital.

"I prayed over it. It was not something just decided in one day. It's been fun. But I feel that I'd just like to go and do something else."

Hugh Greenwood, the hospital's public relations director, said a search committee has been established to find a replacement.

Sister Joan told the trustees, medical advisory committee and staff it will be difficult to leave after a 48-year association with St. Joe's, but even more difficult to leave the many colleagues and friends she has at the hospital.

"It is time for me to pursue other areas of interest and concern, but not before making sure that the talented, dedicated and vital people are in the place to lead St. Joseph's Hospital through the next decade and into the 21st century," she said.

The hospital is in the final year of its 3½-year, $57-million redevelopment program that will leave St. Joseph's with two new wings, a new chapel and upgraded services.

Since Sister Joan took over the executive director's office, the hospital has added a 20-bed dialysis centre, planned for the St. Joseph's Ambulatory Care Centre to serve east Hamilton and Stoney Creek and established such programs as the East Region Mental Health Services, First Place Family Medical Centre and the Hamilton Women's Detox Centre.

Prior to her appointment as executive director, Sister Joan worked in teaching and executive positions at St. Mary's General Hospital in Kitchener and St. Joseph's Hospital in Brantford.

Sister Joan: new challenges

SISTER JOAN O'Sullivan finishes a nine-year career as executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital today — as 1988 is rung out and a New Year starts.

The timing of her New Year's Eve departure also represents a new beginning in her life.

Even though she was under no pressure to retire as the head of one of Hamilton's major teaching hospitals, she said she feels "it's time to go."

Her only immediate plan is to attend a residential school in Israel next spring run by the international religious order known as the Sisters of Zion.

Their school is associated with the University of Toronto and it's there that Sister Joan will audit religious courses on the Old and New Testaments.

"It will be refreshing for me to take something else in, except the business world and health," she said.

"All I'm thinking about (right now) is getting two months in Jerusalem and Israel."

Fresh start for nun who says it's time to 'move on'

However, her busy life isn't likely to end with her departure from St. Joseph's.

At the moment, she is chairman of the Good Shepherd Centre and she said she hopes to remain involved in community activities "if I'm asked."

She will also maintain her association with the hospital's project in the Caribbean island of Dominica.

In November 1987, St. Joseph's in Hamilton and Guelph's St. Joseph's Hospital and Home for the Aged sent $250,000 worth of donated medical equipment and supplies to Dominica.

Coach O'Sullivan: The Greatest.

Perfect ice record on the line

You'd never guess that the gal pictured above is the world's greatest hockey coach would you?

Without a doubt she is just that. Why if she had been behind the NHL All-Stars bench last week when the team played those Russian fellows it would have been a different story.

The gal is Sister Joan (O'Sullivan), hockey coach supreme.

Never lost a game! Why isn't she coaching the Toronto Maple Leafs or Canada's National Team?

She's too busy. Sister Joan is using her head to keep a hospital operating, using one hand to build an addition to the hospital, and coaching a team with the other. Can't get much busier than that!

Sister Joan's team is all-female but it plays only male teams. And isn't that a great name for a team? Joan's Bad Habits.

Her starting lineup is five nuns. One of them, Sister Maria Cordis, is 80-years-young. Who says a hockey player is over the hill at 30?

Now Sister Joan is putting her no-losses record as a coach on the line Saturday night. By the way, her full coaching record is no losses, no ties, no wins. You know of any other hockey coach who can make that statement?

Yes, Saturday night is when Joan's Bad Habits take to the ice but you can give her a win right now. That's because they're playing the CKOC/CHLH squad which consists of a bunch of media people.

The Bad Habits can whomp any media team any time.

Especially the CKOC/CHLH team. Angus McKay, CKOC's morning DJ, coaches that team and he's awful. Wears a kilt! His record as a coach is zero wins, zero ties and 526 losses.

Anyhow the fun, and there will be tons of it, will begin at 8 p.m. at the Mountain Arena on Hester Street.

Tickets are $5 per family. Call 560-7768 to order yours.

Community “owes a lot” to nuns who built St. Joseph’s

Published Oct 24, 2013 Hamilton Spectator

The Sisters of St. Joseph built St. Joseph's Healthcare into the respected teaching hospital it is today.

The Sisters of St. Joseph's came to Hamilton in 1854 and worked out of railway sheds during the cholera epidemic, risking their lives to care for the sick.

They opened a 25-bed facility on John Street in 1890 to help orphans, immigrants and the poor. At the time there was no publicly funded health care.

"The sisters really began the health care system in Hamilton in an organized way," said St. Joseph's Health System CEO and President Kevin Smith in a video tribute.

That facility has now grown to 732 beds, a budget of $600-million and nearly 4,500 staff at its downtown acute-care hospital, east-end urgent care centre and west-Mountain mental health hospital.

The nuns took on leadership roles at times when few women headed health care. Under their watch, a nursing school opened in 1911 and St. Joseph's partnered with McMaster University new Medical School in 1969

One trailblazer was Sister Joan O'Sullivan who was CEO of St. Joseph's from 1979 to 1988.

During her tenure, St. Joseph's went through $60 million to $80 million of redevelopment, including rebuilding the obstetrics department despite uncertainty about how to fund it. She also created the busy urgent care centre in Stoney Creek.

"It was a pretty courageous decision," said Brian Guest, senior vice-president of corporate renewal and mission at St. Joseph's Health System, earlier this year. "That was a challenging time to get the funding in place. In terms of where St. Joseph's is now, the community owes a lot to her."

The nuns also started St. Joseph's international outreach, providing health care and medical training to impoverished nations long before it was popular.

Director's Task, Relief Of Nursing Shortages

By WILLIAM COCKMAN

The destinies of nearly 700 graduate and student nurses in St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton are in the hands of an educated, energetic Director of Nursing —

Fellowship. With it she returned to London to work for her Master's degree. She is the first member of St. Joseph's nursing community here to win the coveted letters after her name.

Now three months at her new desk in the ultra-modern nurses' residence, she has nursing schedules and activities well organized in the multi-million dollar hospital opposite her office window on St. Joseph's Drive. For the first time, class includes four male nurses who room with the hospital interns in a separate building.

She was Joan O'Sullivan, 17, when her hopes of a religious vocation grew bright. The daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. E. O'Sullivan of 16 Victoria Avenue, she had attended St. Patrick's School and Cathedral Girls' High School. She had been active in CYO and a champion in junior city tennis. At 17, she entered St. Joseph's School of Nursing where the dedicated work of the sisters-in-white inspired her. After graduation, she nursed in the hospital, then served a war stint in Christie Street Hospital in Toronto.

She was a private duty nurse eight months, making sure of her vocation, then entered St. Joseph's Convent in 1946. She took her diploma in nursing education at Western University in 1950, then went to St. Mary's Hospital in Kitchener as an instructor in the school of nursing. In 1952 she was in the first group to make final vows at the St. Joseph's Motherhouse at Bridgeview.

In 1955 she went to St. Joseph's Hospital in Guelph as an instructor and director of education. She was appointed director of nursing there in 1959.

For her thesis at Western, she chose "Unit Manager Concept in Action" and went to Sinai Hospital in Baltimore for field experience. They were five memorable weeks. She was the first nun to study there and quickly earned the respect of staff and students. She was there when Pope John died. The Jewish doctors gave her their genuine sympathy and shared her bereavement with prayers in their synagogues.

She defended her thesis successfully, ending her advanced education on a high note. Now as director of nursing, she is in charge of nursing education and nursing service. Two associates share her workload. Mrs. Joan Mason heads nursing education; Mrs. Mary Prelipp, nursing services.

Sister Celestine has one sister, Mrs. Mary Merryman, Baltimore, Maryland, and two brothers: Herbert with the Steel Company of Canada and Paul, manager, Sheraton-Connaught Hotel. Her predecessor, Sister M. Virginia, has moved to a supervisory capacity at St. Mary's General Hospital in Kitchener.

She feels the nursing service is "in a state of transition" and recognizes the acute shortage of qualified nurses. Part of a surgical floor at St. Joseph's is not in service due to lack of nurses. While guiding her present school to a high standard, she will continue the hospital's search here and in other countries for new nursing material.

Along the way, she is certain to inspire recruits to the ranks of the dedicated sisters-in-white.

SISTER CELESTINE

Sister M. Celestine, MScN. Her school of nursing has a total of 345 students this year — a record. Their numbers and quality are rich in promise for the comfort and recovery of patients at St. Joseph's now and in the future.

This is the second time around for Sister Celestine as a director of nursing. This time she brings to the post two enviable university degrees from Western University. Her Bachelor of Science in nursing won for her a Western University's Kellogg

FORMER ST. JOSEPH'S CEO 'TRULY REMARKABLE LEADER'

Published in the Hamilton Spectator April 29, 2013

Inspiring, compassionate and a leader. That is how Sister Joan O'Sullivan is remembered. The former executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, died April 27 in her 67th year as a Sister of St. Joseph. "She had a unique ability to inspire people. I never remember her raising her voice. She let you know in other ways if she didn't like an idea. She had a look that didn't need a lot of translating," says Brian Guest with a laugh. "There weren't many women in these positions then. She was the CEO of a major teaching hospital. For her, everything was about the patient - what was best for the patient, especially those who were disadvantaged. Of course, we had rules and we had to stay within budget. But it was about doing the best for the patient. You would worry about the consequences later." Guest, who is senior vice-president, corporate renewal and mission for St. Joseph's Health System, worked with Sister O'Sullivan for many years.

Born in Hamilton, Sister O'Sullivan graduated from Cathedral Girls High School and the St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing. She is also a graduate of the University of Western Ontario, holding a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree and a Master of Science in Nursing Administration. Sister O'Sullivan was honoured as Irish Canadian Citizen of the Year in 1987 and Woman of the Year in Health Care in 1990.

After working as a private duty, general staff and industrial nurse, she entered the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Hamilton in 1946. She was director of nursing in St. Mary's General Hospital (Kitchener), St. Joseph's Hospital (Guelph) and St. Joseph's Hospital (Hamilton). Prior to her appointment as executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital Hamilton in 1979, Sister O'Sullivan was assistant executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital Brantford and executive director of St. Mary's General Hospital, Kitchener.

As director of St. Joe's Hamilton, Sister O'Sullivan oversaw the construction of a 20-bed regional dialysis centre, the planning and construction of a $57-million hospital redevelopment and the planning and construction of the St. Joseph's Community Health Centre, now King Campus in Stoney Creek.

Another of Sister O'Sullivan's achievements was to start medical missions to developing communities to build healthcare capacity and academic knowledge. This work continues and missions have travelled to Russia, Yemen, Israel, Haiti, Uganda and the Sudan.

"There have always been compassionate healthcare providers doing this sort of thing, but no other hospital was doing it in as organized fashion," said Guest. "We never used public money for this. This speaks to her compassion for those less fortunate. She saw that, yes, we have challenges, but we have so much." Guest acknowledges that Sister O'Sullivan had to make some difficult decisions. "It's not an easy business, but she handled herself with compassion and dignity at all times," he said. "She could have still succeeded today. She never relaxed in her own need to learn and adapt to the changing environment. She was a truly remarkable leader."

The Sisters of St. Joseph will welcome family and friends at St. Joseph's Convent Hamilton May 1, 2 p.m.-4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m. A vigil service will be held at 7 p.m. at St. Joseph's Motherhouse. Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at St. Joseph's Convent, Motherhouse May 2 at 10:30 a.m.

Aia Clinic
The cost of mailing supplies to a clinic near Hong Kong will be paid by the Nurses' Alumnae Association of St. Joseph's Hospital. The decision was made at a recent meeting of over 175 members of the association held in the auditorium at the hospital. Mrs. Russell Fletcher presided. The supplies will go to Sister Paula Marie, a missionary and member of the association, who is in charge of the eastern clinic. Members endorsed a policy of paying membership fees for any St. Joseph's graduate who is engaged in the mission field.

CARING, TRAIL-BLAZING NUN WAS DRIVING FORCE BEHIND ST. JOSEPH’S EXPANSION : SISTER JOAN O’SULLIVAN, MARCH 15, 1922 TO APRIL 27, 2013

The nun who helped build St. Joseph’s Healthcare into the respected teaching hospital it is today has died. Sister Joan O’Sullivan led St. Joseph’s from 1979 to 1988 — a time when few women headed hospitals. “I can’t remember too many women in CEO positions of hospitals at that time,” said Brian Guest, senior vice-president of corporate renewal and mission at St. Joseph’s Health System.

“She was a trailblazer.” Under her watch, St. Joseph’s went through $60 million to $80 million of redevelopment including rebuilding the obstetrics department despite uncertainty about how to fund it. She also created the busy urgent care centre in Stoney Creek. “It was a pretty courageous decision,” said Guest. “That was a challenging time to get the funding in place.

In terms of where St. Joseph’s is now, the community owes a lot to her.” One of her biggest accomplishments was starting St. Joseph’s international outreach, which provides health care and medical training to impoverished parts of the world, such as Haiti and Uganda. “She was responsible for starting that long before international work was on everyone’s mind,” said Sister Anne Anderson, her friend of 50 years.

One of O’Sullivan’s most difficult times as head of the hospital was when it was recovering from a major fire on May 1, 1980. “She really worked at reorganizing, rebuilding and reinvigorating the place,” said Anderson.

Before becoming executive director, she led St. Joseph’s nursing school from 1964 to 1972. She was also assistant executive director of St. Joseph’s Hospital in Brantford and CEO of St. Mary’s General Hospital in Kitchener. “She mentored generations of nurses, and then when she moved into senior administration she administered generations of young administrators,” said Anderson.

She was such a good leader, because she showed respect to all the staff, no matter what role they played in the hospital. “I knew her as an emergency department orderly and as a vice-president, and I can honestly say she treated me no differently in the two roles,” said Guest. “That’s why she was so beloved. She saw everyone in the hospital as part of the team, no matter where you worked and inspired loyalty and commitment to the mission.”

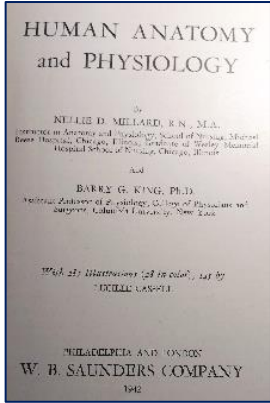

Despite her high profile, she was humble and shied away from the limelight. “She was a very calm influence,” said Guest. “But she had a look — you knew in a hurry when you weren’t meeting expectations.”

She remained committed to bettering Hamilton’s health care until she died April 27 at the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse at age 91. “She truly believed with every fibre of her being that it is an honour to serve the sick,” said Anderson. “I was keeping her very up-to-date on the new St. Joseph’s West 5th site, and she was delighted to think that mental health care was going to take on such an amazing and dramatic transformation.

Until her dying day, she was interested in the care of the people of Hamilton. That’s her greatest legacy.” Lovingly known as “Joan O,” she was a sister of St. Joseph’s for 67 years. Anderson said she loved dogs of all kinds — “anything with four feet and a wagging tail.” “Her faith was the anchor that kept her rooted, active and interested,” said Anderson.

“Her loss certainly will leave a great void in the congregation, but her memory will be a great joy. The tone at the Motherhouse is that we are all profoundly grateful for a life well lived.”

NUNDAY : A NUN, NURSE, AND ADMINISTRATOR

I just read about Sister Joan O'Sullivan, CSJ, a Sister of Saint Joseph from Hamilton, Ontario (Canada), who died last week. My prayers and condolences to her sisters and loved ones. I knew a few sisters from her community when I was in school in Toronto. As we begin this week honoring nurses, it seems appropriate to celebrate Sister Joan, a Catholic sister who was also a nurse and administrator and dedicated to helping others.

She is described as a trailblazer, and the driving force behind expanding St. Joseph's hospital and health care system. She built at a time when funding was questionable, a risky but courageous choice that the Hamilton community -- and beyond -- continue to benefit from. An article by Joanna Frketich of the Hamilton Spectator has a few quotes from Sister Ann Anderson, CSJ, Sister Joan's friend of 50 years.

"She mentored generations of nurses, and then when she moved into senior administration she administered generations of young administrators," said Anderson.

She was such a good leader, because she showed respect to all the staff, no matter what role they played in the hospital....

Lovingly known as "Joan O," she was a sister of St. Joseph's for 67 years. Anderson said she loved dogs of all kinds — "anything with four feet and a wagging tail."

"Her faith was the anchor that kept her rooted, active and interested," said Anderson. "Her loss certainly will leave a great void in the congregation, but her memory will be a great joy. The tone at the Motherhouse is that we are all profoundly grateful for a life well lived."

Thanks be to God for Sister Joan!

Sister Celestine, acting Director of Nursing changed name from "The St. Joseph's Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association" to "Alumnae Association of the St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing".

The reason for the change of wording was that an Alumnae member is a member of the School of Nursing, not the Hospital.
