Gail Armstrong

Joyce Nagle

Remember how you wondered before you came in training what it would be like, what you would study and what residence life would be like? Yes, of course, you do. And realizing this, the School of Nursing embarked this year on an "orientation to nursing" programme for district high school girls. This is a twofold plan. Starting in January, a group, including the Director of Nurses, or the Director of Nursing Education, a clinical instructor, a senior, intermediate and junior student visited Loretto Academy, Niagara Falls, Loretto Academy, Hamilton, Notre Dame, Waterdown and Cathedral High School, Hamilton. Each member of the group gave a short resume of their work, duties and studies. A question period followed. The groups were very well received and they enjoyed the experience as much as their audiences.

The second part of the programme was an "At Home" for the girls from the Hamilton high schools. On February 23rd, approximately 90 girls came to visit St. Joseph's. They were greeted by member of the junior class and shown to the auditorium where a movie depicting a day in the life of a student nurse was shown after a welcoming address by Sister Mary Virginia, Director of Nurses.

On display in the auditorium were several attractive posters concerning interesting points about nursing. These were drawn up by the intermediate nurses. Next on the agenda, was a tour of the hospital conducted by an instructor, senior and intermediate student. Following the tour a lunch was served in the auditorium by members of the senior class.

Both the visits and the at-home were thoroughly enjoyed by the students and their visitors. We felt that this programme not only evoked a greater interest in nursing but also a deeper pride in the students for their school and profession.

Teaching Fire Prevention Holds Pleasant Side

Hospital Nurses Taught How To Act During Fire

Firemen are paid to put out fires, but yesterday, some of them were paid to start some— at a fire fighting demonstration held at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Over 150 nurses assembled at the rear of their living quarters, between John Street and James Street, and were shown the correct way of using fire extinguishers and removing patients to safety, by a group of firemen, under the direction of A. E. Thompson, director of training, for the Hamilton Fire Department.

The nurses were split into two groups. One group was being shown various carrying holds, while at the same time, the remainder were using fire extinguishers on small wood fires, with great enjoyment. The groups then interchanged, so that all the nurses received the full instruction.

The demonstration of what kind of fire extinguisher to use and how to use it, was very realistic, with clouds of choking billowing smoke rising from small wood fires. The nurses were shown on what type of fire to use the soda-acid extinguisher, and what will put out an oil or gasoline fire without the fear of it starting again.

On this type of fire, a chemical powder extinguisher is used which cuts off the oxygen and smothers the fire. Unlike a liquid extinguisher, the powder remains on top of any oil that may remain in a tank after the fire has been put out, and so stops any flash back from hot metal.

Many of the nurses successfully put out the wood and oil fires without difficulty, after the correct method had been explained and shown them by firemen.

"Our opportunities to do good are our talents." C. Maher.

In the above few words is contained a most interesting facet of the goal obtained through the past three years of study and work. Through the guidance of many, we the graduates of '58 have been able to develop talents for helping others.

Yet should we forget that the very essence of our vocation lies in the seizing of "our opportunities to do good", in an environment so alive with them, then we are surely misusing these talents.

It is the sincere hope of the editorial staff that our readers, in leafing through these pages in years to come, will not only stir up pleasant memories but will also renew the high hopes and ambitions they held at the time of their graduation.

 Not only did September '58 bring many new student faces to St. Joseph's Hamilton, but also a new Director of Nursing Education, Sr. Mary Austin. Sister is a graduate of our school and we hope that once again she will feel at home here. Before coming to Hamilton, Sister Mary Austin was Director of Nursing Education at St. Mary's in Kitchener. We all feel that St. Mary's loss is our gain, for her cheery smile and pleasant ways have endeared Sister Mary Austin, to our hearts already.

Lourdes Day

On February 18th, 1958, the feast of St. Bernadette Soubirous, we marked the opening of Lourdes Year. This is a year set aside in honour of Our Lady of Lourdes, who made a series of eighteen apparitions to St. Bernadette Soubirous one hundred years ago.

The chapel was beautifully decked with flowers as Reverend Father John Van Wezel S.C.J. the hospital chaplain, sung the high mass opening the year of devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes. Following the Mass, a day of Exposition and Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament commenced. The Sisters of St. Joseph, Nurses and Student Nurses, and hospital personnel maintained the continuous recitation of the Holy Rosary throughout the day. To climax the day, we had an impressive candlelight procession by the student nurses followed by the Act of Consecration to the Immaculate Heart of Mary and closing with Holy Benediction.

MAY CROWNING

One of the most delightful traditions found in Catholic schools and also in many parishes is the annual May Crowning. May 16th was our Crowning Day here, and after a procession of students in uniform to the chapel, Benediction was sung and a beautifully decorated statue of our Lady was crowned with flowers by Diane Lowe.

The traditional bouquet of white lilies was laid at Our Lady's feet by Kathy Sanderson. After a sermon by Father John, the students recited the Act of Consecration to the Blessed Virgin Mary.

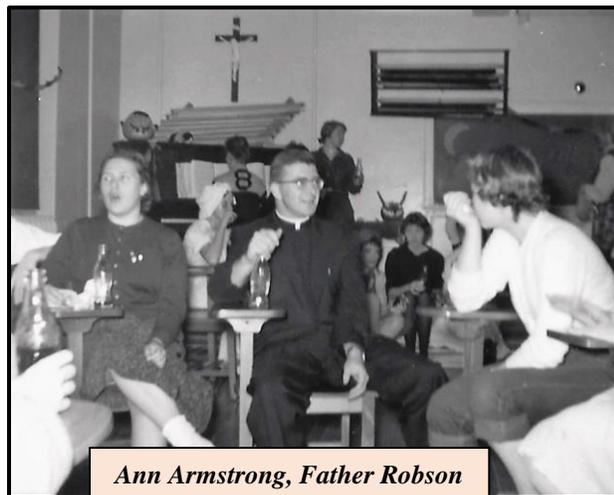

In thus honouring Our Lady, we her children, give honour also to Her Divine Son. How pleased He must be at seeing the attention and love given to His Mother in Her month of May and especially on Crowning Day.

Day of Recollection

May 20, 1958 and May 21, 1958

On May 20th and 21st this year, the graduating class, divided into two groups, made a Day of Recollection. Aided by the lectures given by Father J. McAsey, C.S.Sp., the graduates were able to spend a day reflecting with God over the past three years at St. Joseph's and the future years in distant fields. This was the first year that this opportunity presented itself and it is sincerely hoped by the graduates, who appreciated this chance to orientate themselves and their future with God, that it will become an annual event.

*"Go ye therefore
all nations."*

Retreat

This year there were two retreats held at St. Josephs. On October 14, 15, 16th, Father D. McGoldrick, C.S.Sp. led the retreat for part of the senior class and the pre-clinical class. On Monday December ninth the second three-day retreat for the remaining seniors and the intermediate classes was commenced by Fr. R. Hudson, C.S.Sp.

To us, the retreat was a welcomed relief. It was some time apart from the every day busy life which the hospital offers, to spend a few closer hours in silence, listening to the Word of God. This was so eloquently expressed to us by our Retreat Master that we cannot deny the need for it in our world to-day.

True love of God, devotion to our Blessed Mother, daily Mass and frequent communion — these are the weapons against our satonic atmosphere.

"God and His Blessed Mother will not be outdone in generosity." If we give humbly of ourselves and ignore materialism at its zenith to practice Purity, Charity, and Obedience in our everyday living as Catholic nurses, women, religious and future mothers.

Both Father Hudson and Father McGoldrick instilled in us ideals which we should carry always in our hearts and souls to help us reach our ultimate goal — Heaven.

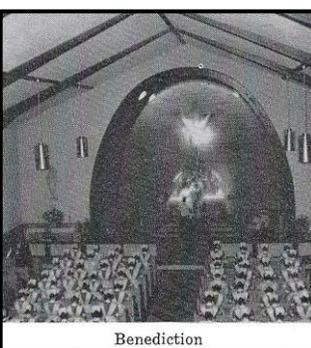

We, as a Student body, wish to express our sincere appreciation to the Sisters and staff, especially to Sister M. Virginia, and Sister M. Austin for making the retreats possible, (also for the tasty snacks enjoyed by all).

To Father McGoldrick and Father Hudson we extend our warmest thanks and appreciation for giving so freely of their valuable time on our behalf.

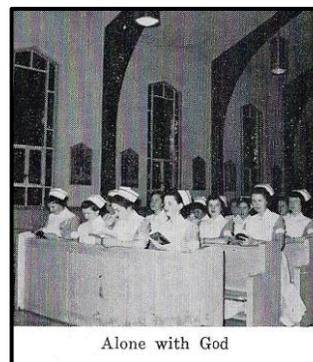

M. O'REILLY.

BLACK BAND DANCE '58

This, I think, is one of the most thrilling of all the dances any student nurse will ever attend. For us, it was our first big dance, and it was held in the Starlight Ballroom of Prudhomme's Garden Centre on August 23rd, 1957.

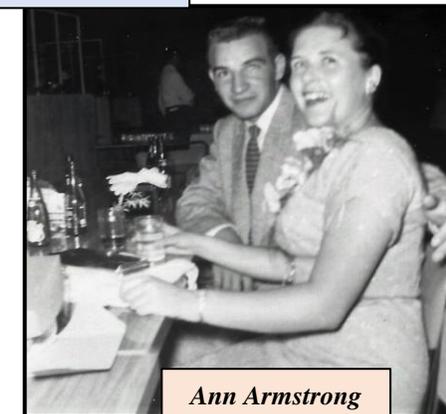

As we arose in the early A.M. our minds quickly by-passed the chores of the day. Nothing could make us tired that day! There were the last minute hair appointments, scurried 'phone calls and a mad rush for bath tubs. Anxious shrieks could be heard from us all. With problems like "hair a mess", "ruined nylons", and "borrowing materials", I'll never know how we ever arrived there at all. And we shall never forget the expression on the faces of other students who watched and wished that they too could go. Remember how we wore that same expression just a year back?

The dance went along very well and we all had a terrific time. Actually, it was the first time all our class went to a dance together. The closeness and privacy was certainly enjoyable.

How we hated to see the night end! But came 2 A.M. and as we reached the front door of Undermount, we realized our goal was coming closer. Onward up to the stairs we climbed, hoping there would be another time.

ONTARIO HOSPITAL AFFILIATION

There is one three month period of these three years anticipated and hoped for more than any other service.

"Going on affiliation" means three months of five-day weeks, countless late leaves, residence freedom plus, plus!, sharing experiences and "beefs" with fellow affiliates. It is "shower day" twice a week in a steam-filled room, rummy, scrabble, badminton and movies. It means assisting with insulin, largactil and electro-convulsive therapy; observing psychotherapy — in progress all day every day with the irreplaceable "O.T." department — where activity and the creation of interest is considered to be the essence of psychiatric nursing care.

It means discouragement to see hundreds of people who fail to respond, living caricatures of personality, spending their years under conditions that are still less than ideal. Yet there is pure wonder and encouragement to observe daily improvement and the eventual discharge of more hundreds of acute cases.

And there is more!

Whether or not the work has been a pleasant experience for you, you begin to realize towards the final weeks, just what it has given you.

You have gained comprehension of the words "mental illness"; fear and curiosity have been banished by understanding of this phenomenon; and the importance of mental hygiene has impressed itself on your thought.

After affiliation, you will speak with respect and sympathy for the afflicted, and conviction of the need for progress and research in the mental health field. You will have new knowledge and feeling that has developed almost unfelt, but for which the cause of public health education has a deep need.

During her student days she was a member of the Canadian Naval Reserve and for a time served on the Canadian aircraft carrier, HMS Bonaventure.
She is a graduate of St Joseph's School of Nursing, class of 1958.
She worked in the Emergency Department at St Joseph's Hospital Hamilton and then in the community with family physician Dr Vincent Rudnick.
Nurse practitioners first came about in the province in the early 1970's and Shirley graduated from McMaster's program in 1973.
She was a member of the school's second graduating class, when only McMaster and Western University offered the program. She was one of the first nurse practitioners in Ontario. She worked as a nurse practitioner at the McMaster University Medical Centre.
In 1980 she was appointed Assistant Clinical Professor in the Department of Family Medicine at McMaster University.*

APRIL 30/58
Pension Plan Set For Staff At St. Joseph's
A pension plan covering 11 payroll employees will be introduced by St. Joseph's Hospital, it was announced today.
The plan is being introduced simultaneously on May 1 at hospitals run by Sisters of St Joseph at Guelph, Kitchener, Brantford and Hamilton.
The Hamilton hospital's share of the plan will be $23,000 in the first year.
A SISTER said today that about 104 employees will be eligible for the first year of the plan. Contributions for past service will be met by the hospital.
"The unsound argument of a hospital which usually operates in the red and cannot afford a pension plan is no longer an accepted hospital policy," she said.

Prior to the graduation exercise the graduates made a Day of Recollection in the hospital chapel. Another pre-graduation exercise was a Red Rose Ball sponsored by the junior and intermediate students. Highlight of this social affair was the election of the Red Rose Queen by the student nurses on the basis of best all – round student.

67 nurses were graduates in the class of 1958. Graduation exercises were held on Wednesday May 28th 1958 in the Auditorium at Cathedral Girls High School.

Dr W. P. Downes, chief of medical staff was chairman of the event.

Diplomas and pins were presented by Rt. Rev. J. F. Hinchey.

Guest speaker was Joseph M. Pigott, Chairman of the Hospital Advisory Board.

Other speakers included Controller Leslie Parker,

Red Rose Ball

"A rose by any other name would smell as sweet" — but not as sweet as those at the Red Rose Ball! May 21st was the evening set for the annual dance given by the students for the graduating class. The graduates on entering the flower-bedecked auditorium, were each presented with a red rose. At approximately ten-thirty p.m. the gay dancing was interrupted to crown the Queen! She was chosen from the graduating class according to her popularity, personality, school spirit, and nursing ability and no better choice could have been made than Marilyn "Dee" Ray. What a charming picture Marilyn made — being crowned by Norma Bell, last years queen, and flanked by her attendants and runners up Madeline Rowe and Gail Armstrong. To say that the Ball was an outstanding success would be the understatement of the year. Thank-you intermediates and juniors!

SANITORIUM AFFILIATION

During our training we had the opportunity of spending one month at the Mountain Sanatorium.

It is interesting to note that the Sanatorium was opened in 1906 and had, at one time, 750 patients, plus a long waiting list. Today, of the seven buildings, only four contain approximately 445 patients, which is a great indication of the decrease in tuberculosis during the past 10—15 years. This is due to the discovery of the newer drugs PAS, Streptomycin and Isoniazid.

The affiliation was divided between class lectures and ward experience. Some were fortunate enough to witness a bronchoscopic examination and a demonstration of the expansion and contraction of a pair of human lungs with the use of oxygen and carbon dioxide. Seeing x-rays of the different areas in the human body where tuberculosis can lodge — lungs, kidneys, bones and joints and following through individual case histories from admission x-rays to discharge x-rays proved to be most interesting.

Most of the patients now hospitalized here are Eskimos and Indians. Their cultures and customs are indeed in itself an education. They are such a happy and affectionate group of people, and adjust quickly to our civilization. The Eskimos are very talented at soap-stone carving and making parkas and slippers. The Indians still retain their known skills in wood-carving and bead embroidery.

The spacious grounds, beautiful scenery, clear crisp air, cheerful attitude of the patients, plus the warm friendliness of the staff make the Sanatorium truly live up to its nickname of "The Ivory Tower."

Graduation Tea

It was 7:15 P.M. on Wednesday evening, May 14th, when the '58 Graduates, dressed in their new spring finery, assembled in the Reception Room. We then proceeded to the Senior Nurses' Residence of the Hamilton General Hospital where we were the guests of the Haldimand-Wentworth Chapter of the R.N.A.O. Mrs. Murphy, President of the Chapter, conducted the meeting and welcomed the graduates of the Hamilton General, McMaster University and ourselves. Mrs. Yates, the assistant City Solicitor, spoke to us on "The growth and development of Hamilton."

After the most interesting talk, we enjoyed delicious refreshments. At this time, we were able to meet the other graduates and share with them the excitement of graduation festivities. It was a most enjoyable evening and we are grateful indeed to the Haldimand-Wentworth Chapter of the R.N.A.O. for this opportunity.

MASS AND BREAKFAST

It was just 5:30 A.M. when one of our classmates made the rounds in Undermount ringing the hand bell. This was our long-awaited graduation day. Everyone was hustling about getting into their well-mended blue uniform with fresh bib, apron and cap. Then we sallied forth to the auditorium to line up in the same fashion as we would follow in the P.M.

As we entered the chapel, the simplicity of the beautifully decorated altar seemed to touch us deeply, on this, our graduation morn. Father John proceeded with the celebration of Holy Mass while the choir joyously rendered hymns in honour of Our Lady in this her month of May. Following Mass, Father John extended his congratulations to the entire class.

Then to breakfast! The tables beautifully decorated in our school colours with flowers of yellow and red, were also set with individual place cards accompanied by navy leather identification holders with our name and hospital engraved in gold letters on the front. All students received either silver chains and medals or ballpoint pens.

Sister Mary Grace then extended her congratulations to the entire class. After breakfast, which was delightfully served to us by the Kitchen Staff, we began our many toasts which included, Sister Mary Virginia, Sister Mary Austin, Sister St. James, and the Kitchen Staff plus various other toasts to individuals in the great class of '58.

44th Graduating Ceremonies
Happiness Lies In Service
Speaker Tells St. Joseph's

The only real happiness to be found in this world is in serving and providing happiness to others, Mr. J. M. Pigott, chairman of St. Joseph's Hospital advisory board, told the graduating class of the Hospital's school of nursing yesterday afternoon.

Parents, relatives and friends filled the auditorium of the Cathedral Girls High School to capacity for the ceremonies.

The graduation program began with the traditional procession of graduating nurses, their arms laden with red roses, to the front of the auditorium.

Valued time of the year when schools are graduating the fruits of their labours, we too, are numbered with the happy ones, rejoicing in our graduation day. This occasion marks the end of our testing years and the commencement of the work we have chosen to follow.

Let us analyse briefly these past years to see what meaning our nursing course implies. It is a process of educating the potential nurse to become an actual one, and to become a responsible and useful citizen. The knowledge, skill and spirit which are used reflect "the art of nursing".

The facts and principles which are basic to arriving at sound judgment in nursing, represent the "science of nursing". This useful service is like a fine fabric made up of many threads, some of them as old as the human race, and others frequently changing for greater beauty and strength.

Nursing has developed from trial and error efforts in caring for the suffering, to a profession, based on scientific principles and advancement. Leaders in this field have been solicitors to preserve and cherish the ancient hallmarks of nursing — compassion and understanding.

The education which we have received imposes certain obligations. One of these is gratitude to those who have made our training possible. We must not pass up this opportunity of publicly acknowledging our gratitude. In the first place we turn to our parents from whom we received our basic concepts and precepts. Numerous factors contribute to make us think and act the way we do. Though we all have a common nature, we each have an individual personality. We are results of heredity and environment, and who provides us with both? — our parents. We stand to-day to take our place in the world as graduate nurses primarily because our parents through kindness and many sacrifices have made possible the attainment of our goal. They have given inspiration and generosity to our youthful days, courage and constancy to our womanhood. For these we express deep gratitude and hope your pride in us this graduation day will repay you at least in a small way.

To the Sisters, who have not only opened our minds to stores of knowledge, but opened our hearts with their unceasing and untiring works, inspiring us with their charity and religious fervour, we offer our sincerest thanks.

To our doctors, who have given generously of their time for our instructions, enlightenment and care during our illnesses, we express our appreciation.

Last, but not least, we pay tribute to our instructors and graduate staff, for their great contribution to our advancement. What patience, tolerance and perseverance you have exemplified. Emerson must have thought of teachers when he wrote "the reward of a thing well done is to have done it".

Now that we have reflected, let us look forward with courage to our new field of endeavour. We have been given much and now we will be expected to give much in return. Just what is expected of the graduate of a Catholic School of Nursing? It would be impossible to discuss all the characteristics desirable in a graduate, so we have selected only three. Christian schools of nursing are the messengers of Christ — and Christ is the message of every Christian. Therefore, a graduate of St. Joseph's School of Nursing should (1) be happy and enthusiastic about her work in nursing, (2) be a woman who is truly an artist in nursing, and (3) understand the true meaning of success. Men were made to work just as surely as birds were made to fly. God had a purpose when he made a graduate nurse, and because of that purpose, He gave her a head and hands and a heart; a head that she might know, hands that she might serve and a heart that she might love. Woman is made to love, to give herself in personal, devoted service, and can only be truly happy when she is fulfilling this.

Let us always remember these ideals which have maintained our alma mater's high standards throughout the land, and confidently go forth with our lamps filled with the oil of Faith and holding aloft the flame of compassionate service. Then truly we will live up to this closing paraphrase of the Cantic of Canticles lines on the ten virgins — "Thy name, oh nurse, is as oil poured out. Mankind loves thee exceedingly."

 HAMILTON

For years, Hamilton's Carol Andrews has been hoping the ring she lost in 1965 would somehow find its way back to her.

And it has. But although she lost it in Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, it has turned up in Newfoundland.

Pat Decker came upon it in 1972, and his long search for the owner ended yesterday.

Andrews rarely wore the ring she proudly earned when she graduated from St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing in 1958. But on the day she took her kids to see the Ice Capades, she decided to wear her ring. And it was there she lost it.

"I never really had closure with that ring," said Andrews, 59. Every once in a while, flipping through the pages of her alumni bulletin or at a reunion, she would get a pang in her heart and think to herself, "Ah, I wish I hadn't lost that ring."

Replica

About 15 years ago, she tried, unsuccessfully, to have the ring replicated at Birks where the original was bought.

But Andrews, who remarried just two weeks ago, hadn't have worried about trying to make a copy -- the original had fallen into the right hands.

Decker of Loon Bay Nfld., found the ring on the ground outside a dance hall in Whitley Bay Nfld.

How the ring made it from the Gardens in Toronto to Newfoundland is anybody's guess.

Two years ago, Decker, 41, enlisted the help of his sister and brother-in-law to find the owners. They had friends in Hamilton look through some yearbooks, but the search led nowhere.

The ring had a nursing crest and St. Joseph's Hospital Hamilton 1958 inscribed on the front. Andrews' maiden name, C. Mielko, was scrolled on the back in fancy lettering that Decker couldn't quite make out.

Carol Andrews, left, and Joan Mason, both graduates of St. Joseph's School of Nursing in 1958, look at Joan's graduation ring.

Test Spenisford, The Spectator

The search for the owner resumed when Decker spotted a similar ring on his wife's cousin, Marilyn MacGillivray.

MacGillivray's husband, Robert, of Grand Falls-Windsor Nfld., decided to help Decker find the ring's owner.

"(Decker) sort of felt bad, you could see that," said Robert MacGillivray. "He said, 'you know (the ring) probably meant a lot to someone.'"

MacGillivray got on the Internet and finally managed to find an e-mail address for St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton.

When public relations assistant Alison Toupitch got the message, she phoned a nursing graduate who offhandedly mentioned the inquiry to nursing system manager Joan Mason.

But that's not possible, so she's going to ask a friend who frequently travels to Newfoundland to get the ring for her.

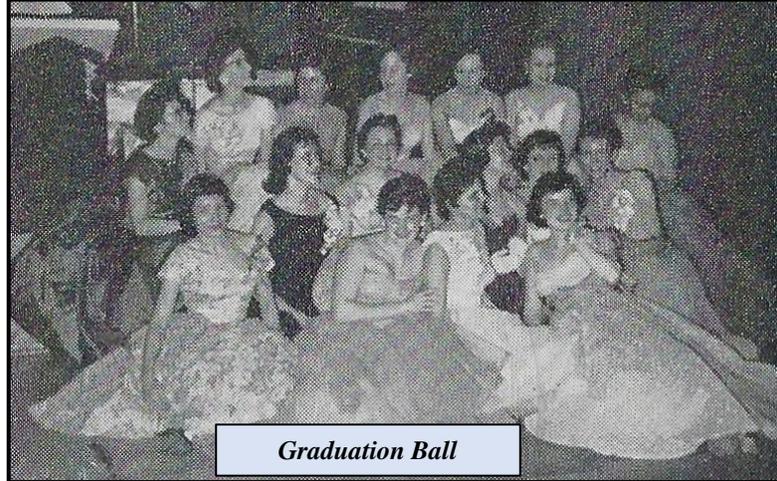

Now that she's found it, Andrews doesn't want to take any chances. "I don't want to get it couriered -- I'm afraid of that."

Would Clear Hospital Within Four Hours

Hamilton, April 21 (Staff)— A disaster plan which would empty St. Joseph's Hospital of regular patients and provide beds within four hours for 258 disaster victims has been adopted by the Sisters of St. Joseph.

The plan, which would provide emergency accommodation for an additional 250 victims after the four-hour period, involves evacuating 90 per cent of the regular patients from the 500-bed hospital.

"The plan would be used in the event of an atomic attack," said Sister Mary Grace, superintendent of the hospital, "but we are chiefly concerned with the possibility of a civilian catastrophe. It could come from a hurricane, a serious train wreck, or an industrial explosion."

While some aspects of the plan are co-ordinated with civil defense, the hospital is prepared to stand on its own feet when confronted with a major emergency, the sister said.

The sprawling Church of the Ascension on Charlton Ave just north of the hospital, is the key to the disaster plan.

Church officials have turned over the entire building to the hospital to be used as a receiving and immediate treatment centre. Duplicate keys to the church are contained in locked despatch box in the hospital under the supervision of a senior sister of the order.

The first phase of the plan calls for commencement of evacuation immediately word of the disaster and its extent is received. During the past year checking has shown an average of 258 bed patients could be moved to other quarters without seriously affecting the conditions.

These—all capable of w...

most of the patient. nity wards—will be bus, car and cab. Meanwhile, an elaborate call system will have been set in motion, key persons called outside the hospital will be responsible for phoning other personnel, ranging from surgical specialists to cleaning women. Within an hour it is expected that 600 personnel in all departments can be told to report for duty.

The hospital's 200 nurses already have been told in their lectures they can expect only blood, sweat and tears, if called in on the disaster plan. Their shift will last as long as the emergency does.

Across the street, medical teams of doctors and nurses will be setting up in the church.

There, plans call for a circular routing of casualties as they come, with the stress laid on a smooth flow of the injured to the emptying hospital beds across Charlton Ave.

A medical team at the receiving door will split the stream, directing first-aid cases in one direction and those requiring serious treatment, and the dead, in another.

The gymnasium of the church will be used as a resuscitation room; the Sunday school auditorium as a treatment centre. A basement Sunday school room will be taken over by first-aid teams. A tiny lecture room will become an information centre.

A team of girls working under the hospital's information officer, Sister Cleophas, will move into the auditorium of Undermount Nurses' Residence, south of Mountain Blvd.

Their task will be to record the name and all available information on each disaster victim as it reaches them by runner from the church. A complete record of all patients evacuated from the hospital and their destinations also will be kept.

Special facilities for the press and the clergy will be set up beside the information centre.

It is expected that within 15 minutes of a victim being admitted to the casualty station, his identity and a tentative assessment of his injuries will be available to relatives at the information centre.

The second phase of the plan is being worked out in conjunction with the civil defense authorities. At present, it calls for CD to provide 250 stretcher beds within the first 24 hours. These will be disposed in corridors, and in many tunnels that run beneath the hospital. Emergency medical kits, drugs and other supplies already are being stockpiled.

Volunteer workers will be needed. The sisters are investigating the possibility of enlisting the fathers and brothers of the nurses in training at the hospital, so they could be included in the initial call-up of the nurses themselves.

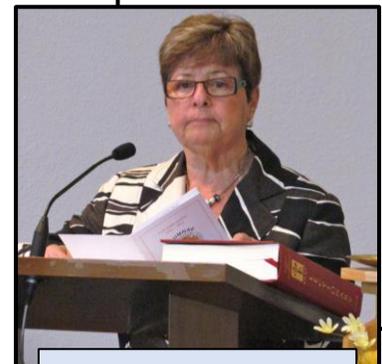

Beginning this summer each team involved will undergo intensive rehearsals. A full-scale rehearsal is scheduled for September.

Bio Sketch of Marilyn A. Ray, Class of 1958

I, Marilyn Anne "Dee" Ray, RN, BSN, MSN, MA (Anthro), PhD, CTN-A, FSfAA, FAAN, FESPCH (hon) am a Professor Emeritus and Adjunct Professor at Florida Atlantic University, Christine E. Lynn College of Nursing, Boca Raton, Florida, USA.

I wish to thank my classmates and President Cheryl McQueen for this honour to share my story of nursing since graduating from St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing in 1958. I was born in Hamilton, Ontario and became a student nurse at St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing in 1955.

My roommate and friend for three years was Diane Valliere Losier. I was selected as the Red Rose Queen with my classmates Maddie Rowe and Gail Armstrong Bjornsen at graduation in 1958. In late fall of the same year a group of us went to Los Angeles, California and worked at UCLA Medical Center where we were introduced to interesting areas of practice. Many other classmates joined us. Some stayed and many went home.

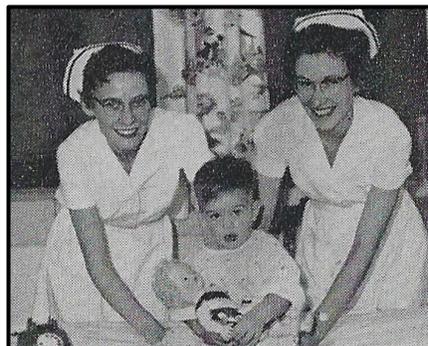

I decided to stay in the United States and return to school as encouraged earlier by Sister Virginia Hanlon. By the grace of God, my personal life and professional career was full of many opportunities and challenges. I got my Bachelor and Master of Science degrees in Nursing from the University of Colorado, Denver, Colorado, graduating in 1968 and 1969 respectively. I was a mentee of the late Dr. Madeleine Leininger, the first nurse-anthropologist, and founder of Transcultural Nursing, and after teaching in California and also the Nurse Practitioner Program at McMaster University, I became Leininger's first student in transcultural nursing acquiring my Doctor of Philosophy degree at the University of Utah in 1981. My research on contemporary nursing culture facilitated the discovery of the Theory of Bureaucratic Caring, the interrelationship and synthesis of caring as spiritual, ethical and humanistic and the hospital culture/context as political, economic, technological, legal and sociocultural. In 1979, I met and married my late husband, James L. Droesbeke, an accountant. I was a faculty member at the University of Colorado with Dr. Jean Watson advancing "caring as the essence of nursing." I was recruited to Florida Atlantic University, Boca Raton, Florida in 1989 where I have remained and have held the positions of Eminent Scholar and Professor in caring science, education, administration, and research. I guess you can say, I love nursing, caring science, and teaching. I am a Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing (FAAN), and certified as an Advanced Transcultural Nurse (CTN-A). After becoming a United States' citizen, I had a parallel career and served in the United States Air Force Reserve Nurse Corps (USAFR, NC) for 32 years in the field of aerospace nursing. I have written books, the latest, "Transcultural Caring Dynamics in Nursing and Health Care." My Archives of Caring are housed in the Museum at the Christine E. Lynn College of Nursing, Florida Atlantic University. I love to come home to Canada and visit with my friends and family and extended families-- Michael (Windsor), Pat (Montreal), Mary (Burlington), Cathy (a graduate of St. Joseph School of Nursing, Class of 1965, Peterborough), and Loretta (Hamilton). I enjoy visiting McMaster University, Faculty of Nursing and have set up an award, Excellence in Nurse Practitioner Education and Practice for nurse practitioner students or faculty. I am especially excited about celebrating with my classmates our 60th anniversary of graduation from our esteemed St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing this coming May 2018. I believe that SJH School of Nursing through education and service provided me with a solid foundation for advancing holistic caring as the essence of nursing.

Never forgot that baby

Woman abandoned as infant reunited with nurse

Loretta Mascia, left, reunites with Joanne Mercer, the baby she held in her arms 50 years ago.

Company's coming and Loretta Mascia has worked herself into a state of high excitement. Her guest is someone she hasn't seen in a long time and she wants everything to be just right.

In the Italian kitchen down the stairs of her west Mountain home, she's putting the finishing touches on a light lunch - homemade sausage, spring rolls, salmon, lots of cheeses. Husband Emilio is setting out the white wine and grappa. "Something like this doesn't happen every day," he says, and remembers when he first heard the story. It was late in 1959 and he had just started going out with Loretta. He went by her house on Kenilworth South and there in the front hallway was a framed black-and-white picture, a glossy from The Spectator.

It was Loretta, holding an infant. "What's this?" Emilio asked. And Loretta told him about the baby found wrapped in a blanket in a pew at the back of St. Joseph's Church on Locke Street on a Sunday afternoon, Feb. 8, 1959. A young woman had called the priest and said, "There's a baby in the church." Then she hung up. The child was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital and determined to be in excellent health. She was thought to be about a week old. Loretta was a new nurse then.

An emotional reunion, 50 years on

Continued from A1 And it was she who held the baby when a Spectator photographer came by. A plea went out for the mother to come forward. She did not. A couple of weeks back, StreetBeat had a 50-years-ago story about the incident. We ran the old nurse-and-baby picture and talked to Loretta, now 73, mother of three. She had never forgotten that time. "I still always wonder what became of this little girl. Who took her in? Where is she now?" And last week we carried the story that answered those questions. The baby had stepped into the light. Joanne Mercer told how she discovered the truth when she was 13. She described growing up with adoptive parents who "did their best." She told of leaving Hamilton at 18. There were two marriages, but they did not last. Joanne earned three degrees, the final one in nursing. And now she works for Toronto Public Health. She loves the work, because you can make a difference. "Sometimes," she said, "it's just a smile or a small kindness. It can be such a simple thing." She has her own copy of the newspaper picture. Joanne was happy the nurse remembered her. She wanted to see her. So on this morning, while Loretta in Hamilton is fussing over homemade sausage, Joanne in Toronto is buying flowers before her trip. She tells the florist it's for someone she doesn't really know. "The last time I saw her," she explains, "was 50 years ago." The person behind the counter wants to know more. Joanne pulls out the old newspaper story. "Wow," says the florist, and puts together a delicate blend of pink roses and carnations. It's five minutes after one. Loretta opens the front door, looks down the street. No one coming yet, so she moves into the checks on things down stairs. Then a knock. In an instant, Loretta and Joanne are in each others arms. "Oh, you're beautiful," Loretta says. "I'm shaking." "I am too," Joanne says. She hands Loretta the flowers. "Thank you for looking after me." "Thank you for coming to our house," Loretta says. "This is your house now." More hugs. They're on the sofa and Loretta pulls out pictures of her own. Here she is on the Safety Patrol, at Communion, in Grade 8 at St. Francis with Doreen Moroz, the childhood friend who has accompanied her here today. Loretta has three bright-eyed grandchildren here at the table too. They've come to see the 50-year-old baby. There are toasts to Joanne, toasts to Loretta. There is, however, one person missing. "I would still love to meet my mother," Joanne says. Loretta takes her arm. "She left you carefully bundled up in that church," she says. "She loved you dearly!" # Thanks Mom, wherever you are

Woman left as baby in church 50 years ago would still like to meet her mother

Joanne Mercer spent her 50th birthday alone. She wasn't sad or feeling sorry for herself. It was just a day she had to get through. Birthdays had always been strange because she didn't know exactly when hers was. The authorities had chosen a birthdate for her - Jan. 27, 1959. So in her small apartment in a Toronto highrise, Joanne watched her 50th pass on by. Thirteen days later, she decided to pull out her special binder, the one she got when volunteering in the Dominican Republic. From it, she took the old clipping. Yes, it was 50 years to the day since her picture had appeared in The Spectator, a baby in the arms of a nurse. No one knew Joanne's name then. She was found on a Sunday afternoon on a pew at the back of St. Joseph's Church on Locke Street. Joanne read the old story one more time that morning, then put the scrapbook away. Later in the day she got a call from an aunt in Hamilton about an item in The Spectator. Joanne went to the Spec website, clicked on StreetBeat and saw that she had made the paper again. The piece explained that the mystery baby was found well-clothed and thriving. There had been a call to the priest from a young woman who said, "There's a baby in the church," and hung up. The baby was taken to St. Joseph's hospital and officials pleaded for the mother to come forward. She didn't. That's where last week's story left off. We didn't know what happened after that. Now Joanne will tell us. From hospital, she was placed in a foster home for about eight months. Then a Hamilton couple who had seen that picture in the paper adopted her. Of them, Joanne says "they did their best." When she was eight, they told her she was adopted. "It was fine," Joanne says. "It meant nothing to me. I just went back outside and played." Her parents did not tell her the part about being left in a church. She found that out at 13, when she discovered the clipping in a drawer. "I never told my parents I knew. But I thought about that woman, and how she had gone through a horrible experience. I wondered if she had anybody or if she was all alone. I was young, but I was a deep thinker." Joanne did well in school, got the highest awards in Girl Guides and one year was Miss Safety Patrol. But she was glad to get out on her own at 18. She first got a degree in Applied Sciences, then another in Commerce in 1985. She went on to work at companies like Xerox and Apple. She did well because she cared about her clients. One day in the early '80s, on the

that was by choice. Joanne looked for a fresh start, went to a career counsellor. They told her she would make a good nurse. She had never considered that, but went on to earn her nursing degree in 2007. Since then she's been working for the Toronto public health department. It's a job where she feels she makes a difference. "Sometimes it's just a smile or a small kindness. It can be such a simple thing." She is grateful for her mid-life rebirth. With no family history, she is careful about her health. She has all the tests, eats right, works out every day. She does not go to church, Catholic or otherwise. She tries to live by the words from Gandhi that appear at the bottom of her e-mails: "We must be the change we want to see in the world." Many years ago, Joanne tried to find her mother. But there were no clues to go on. Perhaps mother is reading this today. "I would like to tell her 'Thank you,' Joanne says. "I appreciate what you went through to bring me into this world. I would love to meet you and say, Ah, so that's where I got my hazel eyes. That's where I got my dimples!" StreetBeat appears Monday, Wednesday and Friday. pulvison@thespec.com 905-526-3391

TOAST TO THE ALMA MATER

By Charlotte (Judson) Smart '58

It is my honour this evening, as a member of the 50th Anniversary Class, to propose the toast to our Alma Mater.

Fifty years ago my classmates and I attended our first Alumnae Dinner. For some of you it has been more than fifty. Some of you have been coming an incredible 71 years since graduation. For others, your anniversaries are fewer. Little did any of know what lay ahead in terms of our professional and personal lives.

And little did we know that we would return to this event as often as possible to celebrate that special bond that unites us all.

We all share similar memories of the 3 years in our lives when we evolved from eager, naïve, recent high school graduates, into newly minted, confident and to be truthful, somewhat scared new graduates.

If we were to tell our children or our grand-children of our "training days" – 12 hour shifts, 10:30 p.m. curfews, classes and ward-work combined, they would presume that we actually trained in Victorian Times.

Similarly, if we were to tell present day nurses that patients received a daily bed bath, and an evening back rub, they would be sure we nursed alongside Florence Nightingale.

It is interesting to note that hand-washing as an infection control measure has been re-discovered.

Yes, the nursing profession has changed over time, but the tradition of nursing – to serve, to alleviate pain and suffering, to support the ill and their families remains the basis of the many facets of the profession today.

All the Reunion Day Events, the Mass, the Dinner, the individual class luncheons, breakfasts etc. stir up memories of the good/old – bad/old days.

Some of these memories included, as I was reminded at lunch today, that our Class of '58 was considered quite radical, since we had a lawyer on hand to strengthen our campaign to abolish 12 hour shifts!

And as we reminisce, we also remember with fondness our classmates, instructors and the Sisters of St. Joseph who are no longer with us.

The guiding principles we all learned as students of St. Joseph School of Nursing remain a part of our daily lives – and as long as this is so- St. Joseph's School of Nursing lives on.

Please stand and raise your glass to our Alma Mater – St. Joes.
