The birth of St. Joseph's School of Nursing Alumnae Association

The St. Joseph Hospital Alumnae was organized in 1915 under the convenorship of Misses Ada Egan and Jean Morin, assisted by Mother Helen Superior of the Hospital and Sister St. Basil Superintendent of Nurses.

After much planning and formulating of the constitutions and by-laws the nucleus of the present association was formed, with Miss Ella Kelly as president.

LARGEST GRADUATING CLASS OF ST. JOSEPH'S

Thirty-Two Young Ladies Received Nursing Diplomas Yesterday; Miss Annette Egerton Wins First Prize for General Proficiency 1928

Dr. L. R. Hess, chairman of the medical staff, was the chairman yesterday afternoon at the graduating exercises of St. Joseph's hospital school of nursing, which took place at the nurses' residence, "Undermount." In welcoming those present Dr. Hess announced that it was the largest graduating class ever held, there being 32 graduates. However, the number of graduating nurses was still unequal to the demand, he said.

Mr. Vernon Carey's song, entitled "Marry," by Maude Valerie White, and Mrs. J. C. Brigger's vocal solo, "Dear Soul," by Sanderson, were greatly enjoyed. Their vocal duet "At Dawning," by Cadman, was delightful.

VERY REV. DEAN CASSIDY
Right Rev. J. T. McNally, D.D., Bishop of Hamilton, made the presentation of diplomas and medals to the graduates. Very Rev. G. Cassidy was the first speaker of the afternoon. He congratulated the nurses upon having fulfilled so efficiently the time required in the training school, and also upon the occasion of receiving credentials which enabled them to enter the noble profession of nursing. It was an important day because it marked the termination of three years of hard work and study, and they naturally felt proud and happy. He stressed the importance of the nurse in a community. "You are starting on a new field of activities

THE MAYOR SPEAKS

His worship Mayor Burton said that it was a distinct honor and pleasure to be present, and he wished the graduates every joy and success in the noble work which they were undertaking. Theirs would not be an easy life. In fact it was one of the hardest. The harder they work, the greater reward they would find. He had had experience with the work of the nurses in the great war, and had a very sincere respect for the nursing sisters of Canada, the mayor said.

Dr. H. J. Sullivan, on behalf of the medical staff, congratulated the young ladies. He felt certain that if they lived up to the standard of their training school, their success would be assured. He also congratulated the parents, whose sacrifices had made the graduation possible. Service to humanity was the chief aim of nurses. Their responsibilities were three-fold: to the patient, to the doctor, and to themselves. They must remember to nurse the sick, and not the sickness, and must keep an atmosphere of happiness and sympathy continually for the patient, for sympathy was the natural antidote for pain. They must follow the doctor's orders in a loyal and faithful manner, and must avoid unjust criticism. All difficulties and dangers should be avoided, in the administration of drugs, especially narcotics. The nurses

THE BISHOP'S ADVICE

Bishop McNally stated that he was glad to be present to congratulate the class on such a happy occasion. There was not only very noble but also a very responsible position. There was a tinge of sadness to the graduation, for conditions demanded that their old associations be broken and that they go their separate ways. He advised the nurses to lighten the way of suffering souls with their smiles. "You must combine usefulness with sweetness and give both sympathy and help," he stated. Patients should have treatment for their souls as well as their bodies. They should be taught of the possibilities which lie beyond death, for their souls lived on. An important part of the nurse's duty was to recognize the value of the soul. She should be guided by the supernatural in life, he said. Thanksgivings should be indoctrinated with everyone. He hoped that the graduates would go forth illumined by the continual sense of their responsibilities so that their lives would be a pledge for eternal life.

The graduates were as follows: Misses Annette M. Egerton, Galt; Dorothy Pitt, Hamilton; Fanny Carlisle, Hamilton; Ruth M. Young, Hamilton; Rita M. Commerford, St. Catharines; Kathleen Kinchular, Port Dover; Adelaide Commerford, Thorold; Aileen M. Melody, Hamilton; Margaret E. Williams, Hamilton; Loretta M. Curley, Hamilton; Ivy M. Hoyie, Hamilton; Mildred E. Soutar, Hamilton; Ella E. Connors, Hamilton; Bernice L. Vinall, Hamilton; Doris Pond, Jarvis; Basilla M. Cronin, Teeswater; Grace M. Kitchen, St. George; Mabelle M. Clifford, Dunnville; Genevieve A. Murray, Cayuga; Olive M. Weller, Midway; Ole M. Tooley, Beamsville; Jean K. Hanley, Hamilton; Nancy Speight, Hamilton; Edith L. Dent, London; Helen M. Memories top agenda at nurses' reunion

CALL IT an act of inquiring minds. About 50 years ago Norah Campbell and her classmates at St. Joseph's School of Nursing were penalized for trying to get to know a group of air force men.

The student nurses were living in one of the school's residences which faced the window of a building housing the young men.

Their curiosity got the best of them when the women began peering in the window. It ended when they were caught waving at the men.

The punishment — loss of their Saturday night passes — seemed pretty stiff at the time, but looking back on the event at a meeting of the school's alumni last night brought plenty of laughter.

'Talked about fun things that happened ...and some of the sad'

"I was kind of waving," chuckled Mrs. Campbell, now 71, who reminisced with several former school chums.

The group was among 400 nurses who attended a dinner held by St. Joseph's School of Nursing Alumnae Association at the Hamilton Convention Centre.

Twelve of Mrs. Campbell's fellow graduates from the class of 1938, arrived from across Canada and the U.S. to share some memories. Graduates ranged from the class of 1925 to 1974, which was the last graduating class before community colleges took over nursing training.

The reunion is an annual event. "It's been yak, yak, yak," said Mrs. Campbell of Owen Sound. "We've talked about some of the fun things that happened and some of the sad things."

Mrs. Campbell's memories of the school are fond ones. "It had good discipline and good training too," she said. "It was the best."

Lorna Matthews of Upper Wellington Street, a graduate of 1964, also has happy memories of her years as a student.

In fact, Mrs. Matthews has been a familiar face at St. Joseph's Hospital since studying there.

After graduation, she spent one year at Hamilton General Hospital then took a few years off to have children. But by 1957, she returned to the hospital she fondly refers to as home.

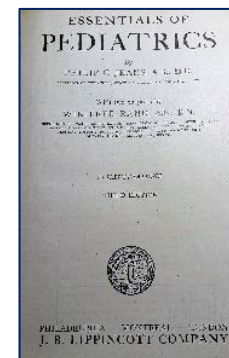

Now she is head nurse in the kidney transplant and peritoneal dialysis units.

The passing years have brought a lot of changes at St. Joseph's, said Mrs. Matthews. The hospital is bigger and students don't live in residences anymore.

"But I guess that's progress," she added, before heading off to catch up on the news with old friends.
