Nurses upset over loss of classrooms

FIRST YEAR nursing students at Mohawk College are upset because they will lose their classrooms at St. Joseph's hospital.

"It hit us like a bomb," said one first year student, a spokesman for several student nurses.

"We don't know where we're going, or whether we'll have any choice."

The 70 students have been told they will not complete their nursing diploma at St. Joseph's but will be transferred to other hospitals in Hamilton and Brantford.

Mohawk College runs nursing school campuses at Hamilton General, Chedoke and Brantford General hospitals, as well as St. Joseph's.

Offices

The students' present classrooms in Fontbonne Hall, on James Street South behind St. Joseph's Hospital, are slated to become hospital offices next September.

College officials say the students will continue to do their clinical work in St. Joseph's Hospital, but will have classroom and laboratory work at another campus.

"It's not fair. We'd only been in classes for a few weeks when the nursing director came in Sept. 19 and said we wouldn't finish our nursing at St. Joseph's," said the student nurse.

"All of us feel something personal for St. Joseph's. We think it's the best school for nursing in Hamilton, that's why we chose it."

She said the first year students are bewildered because many of their questions have been unanswered.

Dr. John Frid, Mohawk's dean of health, disagreed with the student, saying the first year students were told about the situation at a general meeting and it was discussed at several small meetings.

Emotional

"We've spoken many times to the students and are willing to talk to them about the situation many more times. I know our staff is in regular communication with the students."

He said the college's board of governors and the hospital are still in negotiation regarding the nursing school space at Fontbonne Hall, which used to be a residence for nurses.

Mohawk College has agreed in principle to give up the 50,000 square feet of space in the hall it has leased from the hospital since 1973, when the college took over responsibility for the nursing school.

Sister Louise Demers, director of hospital services of St. Joseph's, said the hospital's role in nursing education will remain the same.

"We've had a crying need for room to shift people who are now in obsolete and overcrowded facilities, in order to provide good health care. The decision to move the school rooms was not taken lightly by either institution," she said.

PROFILE

Maureen Goutier, R.N. B.A. M.A. (Leonard'78)

Maureen graduated from Mohawk College, Nursing Program, St. Joseph's Campus, in 1978. The slogan for that year's graduating class was the "Last of the Best" and Maureen is certainly no exception. In 1996 she received her B.A. in Medical Sociology from McMaster University and then continued on to earn her M.A. as a Medical Sociologist. She is presently working towards her Ph.D. on Aging Research, which she hopes to complete in 2003.

In addition she has just released a hit song on Hillcrest records entitled "Not This Time". It is being played internationally on radio stations throughout Europe and Canada. Critics say that her song is "well written, produced and sung", and describes her voice as rich and powerful.

In between all of this, Maureen teaches Gerontology part time at McMaster and is a Mother of a 13 year old son, Blake.

Indeed it can be said that our nurses have many talents.
